I have reviewed medical records provided regarding Erik Saracino. Mr. Saracino is a 38-year-old male who was injured in a motor vehicle accident which occurred on January 11, 2010.

I reviewed records of treatment by Dr. Smith. In a note of May 10, 2012, Dr. Smith indicates that Mr. Saracino was experiencing pain in his right shoulder going up to the neck and down to the elbow. The records indicate that Mr. Saracino has undergone extensive treatment including care by three different physical therapists, imaging studies, medications, injections, and arthroscopic shoulder surgery performed in January 2012. Dr. Smith stated that Mr. Saracino had sustained right shoulder damage as noted on the MRI scans and at the arthroscopic procedure. Dr. Smith indicated that future treatment including surgery, MRI scans, injections, and physical therapy would be required.

I reviewed charges for Mr. Saracino's treatment between January 13, 2010, and April 25, 2013.

I reviewed records of treatment by Dr. Palmaccio.

I reviewed operative note of surgery performed at Delaware Valley Orthopedic and Spine Surgery Center on January 20, 2012. Preoperative diagnosis was right shoulder dysfunction, postoperative diagnosis was subacromial bursitis and tendinitis. Dr. Palmaccio performed arthroscopic debridement of the subacromial bursa and an injection of Marcaine and Depo-Medrol. Examination of the glenohumeral joint fail to reveal any marked pathology. Minimal degenerative change was seen which was described as quite small. The subacromial space revealed some inflammation of the bursa. No evidence of impingement or acromioclavicular impingement. I reviewed records of physical therapy treatment.

I reviewed reports of the following MRI scans. MRI of the right shoulder obtained on May 4, 2010, revealed supraspinatus tendinopathy, acromioclavicular joint arthritis, and no evidence of full thickness rotator cuff tear. MRI of the right shoulder obtained on April 15, 2011, again demonstrated mild acromioclavicular osteoarthritis with capsular hypertrophy and edema, mild rotator cuff tendinosis, and subacromial bursitis. There was no evidence of full thickness rotator cuff tear.

MRI of the right shoulder obtained on November 7, 2012, revealed no rotator cuff tear, mild rotator cuff tendinopathy, mild subacromial bursitis, moderate degenerative changes and hypertrophy of the acromioclavicular joint. The radiologist, Dr. Rachner, compared the November 7, 2012, MRI to the prior right shoulder MRI of April 15, 2011, and did not identify significant changes.

The medical records which I have reviewed document complaints involving the neck, right shoulder, and right arm. The records which I reviewed do not document any specific mechanism of injury that occurred to the neck, right shoulder, or right arm on January 11, 2010.

Mr. Saracino received an extensive course of treatment which based on the records which I reviewed were in response to his subjective complaints.

Injuries to the neck, shoulder, or arm may occur in a motor vehicle accident. The records which I reviewed indicate that MRI scans were obtained, which revealed findings of rotator cuff tendinitis, subacromial bursitis, and acromioclavicular hypertrophy. These findings are natural consequences of aging within the shoulder. The medical records did not document any clear etiology and causal relationship between these MRI findings and the injury of January 11, 2010.

Neck and shoulder soft tissue injuries may occur in motor vehicle accidents. The findings of acromioclavicular arthritis, rotator cuff tendinosis, and subacromial bursitis are natural consequences of aging.

Based on review of the submitted medical records and my clinical experience, no objective abnormalities were identified on the three MRI scans of the right shoulder or at the time of arthroscopic right shoulder surgery that would be causally related to the injury of January 11, 2010.

The type, intensity, frequency, and duration of the provided treatment was excessive even working on to the assumption that Mr. Saracino did indeed sustained soft tissue injuries to his neck or shoulder in a motor vehicle accident.

It was reasonable to evaluate Mr. Saracino's subjective complaints with an MRI scan of the right shoulder. When his complaints persisted following surgery, it was reasonable to reevaluate him with a followup MRI scan.

The clinical findings on the MRI scans of acromioclavicular hypertrophy, rotator cuff tendinosis, and subacromial bursitis are consistent with natural consequences of aging.

Based on objective information available in the medical records, the provided treatment was excessive in terms of allowing Mr. Saracino to reach the point of maximum medical improvement.

The diagnoses based on review of the medical records are complaints of neck, right shoulder, and arm pain, acromioclavicular arthritis, rotator cuff tendinosis, and subacromial bursitis.

Based on available objective data in the medical record, a favorable prognosis should be expected following the January 11, 2010, injury.

Based on review of the medical records and the objective information regarding the events of January 11, 2010, I do not believe that Mr. Saracino sustained any permanent impairment that would be causally related to the injury of January 11, 2010. The operative note does not describe objective abnormal findings that would be causally related to a traumatic injury of the right shoulder. The records indicate that there was a two year delay between the injury of January 11, 2010, and Mr. Saracino's right shoulder surgery.

I cannot state based solely upon the medical record whether or not Mr. Saracino is able to return pre-loss activity levels or whether he has reached his pre-injury status.

Based on my review of the medical records, Mr. Saracino has reached the point maximum medical improvement following the injury of January 11, 2010.

Based on review of the medical records, Mr. Saracino does not require any current or recommended future treatment that would be causally related to the injury of January 11, 2010. The proposal by Dr. Smith that Mr. Saracino would require arthroscopic clean outs every several years, updated MRIs every year or so, and intra-articular injections every three months is not consistent with generally accepted treatment of any disorders of the shoulder let alone any treatment causally related to the injury of January 11, 2010.

Based on objective findings in the medical records, Mr. Saracino's condition has stabilized regarding the injuries of January 11, 2010.

I do not believe that any current or recommended future treatment is indicated.

I do not believe any proposed surgery is reasonable or medically indicated regarding Mr. Saracino's right shoulder.

The medical records do not identify pre-existing or concurrent medical or psychological conditions affecting Mr. Saracino's recovery.

Please contact me if I may provide further information to you regarding Mr. Saracino.
